Maine Poultry Improvement Association

To Organize Visit in Oxford County

At a recent poultry tour in Oxford County conducted by the Adult Poultry Clubs of Mexico, Hiram and Norway, under the direction of County Agent Ridley, the subject of starting an Oxford County unit of the M. P. I. Assn. was discussed. Warren Chadborn, a director of the State Association and president of the Cumberland County unit, outlined the aims of the association and mentioned some of the accomplishments to date; the most outstanding of these being the two day poultry school held at Orono this week. Nearly twenty-five people attended the tour and many agreed that such an association was needed. A committee of six was appointed by resolution during the noon hour. This committee will meet later and decide on a plan of solicitation to enroll membership in the association. The committee as appointed is made up as follows: L. H. McGarrard, Hiram; Carroll DeCoster, Norway; Chester M. Merrill, South Paris; Robert D. Hastings, East Bethel; Alfred J. Dyer, Norway; and Ralph Hill, Fryeburg.

Only fifteen members are needed to start a county unit, but the committee expects to get many more than that. Actual calls on poultrymen will probably be necessary to secure the enrollment.

ANDOVER

Watchman Found Dead—Thurston's Visiting Relatives.

William Thompson, fifty-eight, night watchman for the Elliott & Bartlett Spool Co., was found dead in the mill at 5:45 Saturday morning. He was heard about the mill at 5 o'clock. He had not been feeling well for a few days. Charles Bemis arrived at the mill first after not hearing the 5:30 whistle, which Mr. Thompson always blew and found him sitting just outside the boiler room. Dr. Harold Stanwood, medical examiner, pronounced death due to heart failure. The remains were taken to Meader & Perry's undertaking rooms at Rumford and were sent to his only near relative, an aunt, Mrs. W. T. Whitney, Fitchburg, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Milton and two children, Robert, Jr., and Johann Phyllis, are visiting her parents in Gardiner for two weeks.

Fryeburg Academy

The first of a series of events to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the birth of Daniel Webster was celebrated at Fryeburg, Monday, Aug. 17th, with the dedication of two new buildings at Fryeburg Academy. Fryeburg Academy was founded in 1792 and Daniel Webster was its second principal. The building, however, in which Webster taught, has long since disappeared.

Webster was born January 18, 1792, at Franklin, N. H., then known as Salisbury. He came to Fryeburg Academy in 1802, a year after his graduation from Dartmouth College.

During the past twelve years the enrollment of the school has doubled to its present total of 150, which has necessitated the two new wings dedicated last Monday. These wings are the gift of Cyrus H. K. Curtis of Philadelphia, who has without question been the greatest benefactor to the institutions of the state of Maine.

Most of the grading of the grounds, building of terraces and other work in connection with the new structures was done by students who volunteered their services since the Academy did not have sufficient funds to let the work to contractors.

Among those present at the ceremony, in addition to Mr. Curtis, were Governor William T. Gardner of Maine and Harvey D. Gibson of New York, President of Manufacturers Trust Company. Mr. Gibson is an alumnus and trustee of the Academy.

The original incorporation act for the Academy was signed by John Hancock, who was the first signer of the Declaration of Independence. On the original Board were the Rev. William Fessenden, David Page, Moses Ames, James Osgood, Simon Fyfe, the Rev. Nathaniel Porter, James Osgood of Conway, Henry Young, Brown and Paul Langdon of Brownfield.

Fessenden and Paul Langdon were Harvard men, the Rev. Nathaniel Porter was a later trustee as Peleg Wadsworth, grandfather of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

The new school buildings will constitute a lasting memorial to the famous American, whose name has been identified with the Academy for a century and a quarter. Webster's early principalship appears to have been the turning point in the school's life. Not only was it his first effort towards earning a living, but his future career in law. Many of his letters written about this time express the thought that "However successful or unsuccessful I may have been in teaching, I was not lost time in regard to my own progress."

Webster's duties began in the winter of 1802, when, according to his autobiography, "the necessity of the case required that I should then go somewhere and gain a little money. I was written to, luckily, to go to Fryeburg, Maine, to keep school. I accepted the offer, traversed the country on horseback, and commenced my labors."

The salary was $350 per annum, and the new schoolmaster attempted to supplement this meagre income by transcribing deeds in long hand for his landlord, James Osgood, Esq., Receiver of the newly created County of Oxford.

"Mr. Osgood proposed to me that I should do this writing, and that, of the two shillings and threepence for each deed, I should have one shilling and sixpence, and he should have the remaining ninepence. I greedily seized on so tempting an offer and set to work. Of a long winter's evening I could copy two deeds, and that was half a dollar. Four evenings in a week earned two dollars, and two dollars a week paid my board."

"In May of this year, during a vacation, I took my quarter's salary, mounted a horse, went straight over all the hills to Hanover, and had the pleasure of putting these, the first earnings of my life, into my brother's hands for his college expenses. Having enjoyed this sincere and high pleasure, I hid me back again to my school and my copying of deeds."

Webster did not remain at the Academy for the full year and when he resigned the trustees gave him a vote of thanks and five dollars additional to his salary as a small token of their appreciation for his services. Letter from Mr. Webster during his later public life, showed a continued interest in the Academy, the only place where he ever taught. Aside from Webster's connection with Fryeburg Academy, it is interesting to remember that his first leading case before the Supreme Court had to do with an educational institution, the famous Dartmouth College case, which decided a very important question of contract law.

Historically, Fryeburg, itself, is one of the most important towns in the State of Maine. It was cleared for settlement by the famous fight of Lovell's Pond, when thirty-four white men routed eighty Indians, all but a handful of the participants being killed or wounded. In 1800 the only two newspapers in the State were published at Portland and Fryeburg.

Heard and Seen at Advertiser Office

Miss Ona Yates is stenographer in the clerk of courts office at South Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Frost and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Knowles of South Portland spent the week end at "The Lookout". Mr. and Mrs. George Bailey of Portland were Sunday guests there.

Margaret Wood of Portland visited at Virgil Flood's the first of the week. Donald Wood is working in the corn shop.

Mary Healy is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Chas. Koza, in Arlington, Mass.

Little Ida May Bird had an ill turn one day last week, but is some better now. Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Savin were recent visitors at Walter Canwell's.

Arthur Millett and son, Howard Millett, of Waterford, are helping Merritt Savin cut his hay with their team. Charles Rice of North Waterford has been at work at the same place, also Ivan Kimball works there.

Mr. and Mrs. Kimball recently saw a small bear cub while going home. Little Bear was in the bushes by the side of the road. Mr. Kimball heard a rustling among the leaves and with the aid of a flashlight he located him there, but did not stop to locate the mother bear for obvious reasons.

Edward of North Waterford, Mass., were at Merritt Savin's last week. Mrs. Bay had been spending a month at her old home in New Brunswick with a brother and sister. Mr. Rand and son, George, went after her with their car and they were on their return to North Waterford.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Miller of Frances town, N. H., and daughter, Mrs. May Woodbury of Bloomfield, N. J., spent the week end at the same place. The Millers had been on a sailing trip. They came across New Hampshire to Portsmouth, then followed the Maine coast to Wiscasset, then to Augusta and on to Moosehead Lake, then to the Rangeley and down through Farmington to Loviston and were going from here to the White Mountains and on home.

Walter Canwell has sold his bull to Merton Kimball of South Waterford. Mrs. Kimball recently visited at her home here. Mrs. Annie Holt of South Paris and daughter, Mrs. Stephen Klamant and daughter of Norway called at the same place the same day.

Don Brown is at work on the state road in Albany for Spaulding Abbott.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Jones and children, Leslie and Isabel, were recent callers in this place.

Prof. Robert G. Dawes drove up to represent the Dawes family. He has been teaching dramatics in the Women's College of Mississippi, and will leave here for a short stay at Lakewood Theatre and return south via Cape Cod, where he will absorb some of the dramatic atmosphere at Colony Dennis.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Klander of Philadelphia have joined the medical colony here. The doctor and his wife are ardently interested in golf.

Mrs. Deppich is entertaining her sister, Mrs. Burdett, Mr. Burdett and Miss Marion Burdett.

Earl Deppich and his wife will be with us shortly. Dr. Deppich finds time from business to go in for the collection of antique furniture and china.

W. Simpson ("Bill") Athletic Director at Sokokis, remembered as the author of the North Bridgton song hit, "One Night in Maine, Dear", is a frequent dinner guest at the Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Shraeder of Philadelphia came here to visit their boy, John Andrew, who is at Sokokis. Mr. Shraeder is the legal representative of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Edward "Odie" O'Connell of Boston and North Bridgton will leave here after the summer season to continue his studies at the University of Maine. The best wishes of all the guests go with him. We look forward each year to his welcoming hand and smile.

Miss Muriel Ewing and her mother are here until the closing of Long Lake Lodge. Miss Muriel is a versatile writer and all around sports woman. In 1929 she pitched a winning game in the Femmes vs. Hommes for the benefit of the North Bridgton Library.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold MacGlosson of Beacon came up last week. Mr. MacGlosson is here to sample the health giving air of Maine.

Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Tolar of Florida "stopped by" on a flying trip to the actors' colony at Lakewood.

F. W. Heaney, Esq. and his wife have taken the Wilbur cottage and are joined by Mr. and Mrs. Irving Picard of Beacon. Needless to say their cottage is headquarters for bridge and golf post mortems.

At this writing Mrs. Wilbur has contemplated plans for one of her favorite sunset picnics at a rendezvous which she will not disclose. The guests already sniff in their imagination, the delectable aroma of baked beans, coffee and other palatable commodities for which she alone is noted far and wide.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson and their charming boy (of eight months) have arrived. Needless to say this is Robert, Jr.'s first stay. Mr. Cyril Wilson, who is in the banking business in New York, accompanies the doctor.

Chief Madabeh of the Penobscots gave a talk on the lawn on Sunday night. The setting was very picturesque and as darkness fell the lights from the guests cars lit up the scene. We are always entertained and amused by his talks on sign language, folk lore and woodcraft.

Phillip Wilbur of the Statler of Boston was with his parents at the Inn for a week. The guests have seen "Phi"

The Children's Corner

AUNT BETSY'S LETTER

Dear Grandma—I want to thank you very much for your chronicles of Dorothy. They have a prominent place in my scrap book. Are you keeping a sort of diary for her to have when she is grown up? I purchased the five cent notebook and write in the high lights of each child. When they do or say some amusing thing I jot it down in the book. In later years these books will provide many pleasant hours for the child to read of his or her antics of childhood.

I certainly would like to hear about your childhood days. Did you use to have one of those dolls with the china head, hands and feet? My mother had one and let me play with it when I was a small child. It was the quaintest looking doll I ever saw. The hair was the painted on style—it had a "wasp" waist and was dressed in a red and black plaid cashmere dress. The underwear was once white, but the years had yellowed the material. I spent many happy hours with her for all she wore a moth eaten gown!

Today I am making another birthday cake for her to have a seven year old miss now. She is going to have a party for a few of her schoolmates.

I have heard quite a lot about the zoo at Farmington and sometime I must try and get over to see it.

Please write us some more of Little Dorothy and of yourself. We have a Dorothy in our family and she is three months younger than your little one. Were I to write of her actions and sayings it would fill a whole issue of the Advertiser! It is sufficient to say she leads the whole family a wild chase most of the time.

Hoping to hear from more of the Corner Cousins, as ever,—Aunt Betsy.

GUESTS AT WYONEGONIC INN, NORTH BRIDGTON

We hasten to correct an error in this column of last week. The flag-pole at the Inn was the gift of Professor Spooner of Long Lake Lodge and to him we accord a hearty "thank you".

The roster of medical visitors has been augmented by the names of Dr. and Mrs. H. Rasi of Brooklyn, where the doctor practices oral surgery.

From Philadelphia we have Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence and their son, "Bud", and Miss Mabel, who is a junior at Swarthmore College. This is Dr. Lawrence's second season and he brings with him his friends, Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Roper of Philadelphia, with their charming children, Miss Jane and Master John. Dr. Lawrence and Dr. Roper spend the greater part of their time at the Highland Golf Course.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moller of Manhattan, New York City, are here for their eighth season. Mr. Moller kindly heads the reception committee on the piazza and the golf course. The season is never complete if the guests do not count him and his charming wife among their numbers.

Prof. Robert G. Dawes drove up to represent the Dawes family. He has been teaching dramatics in the Women's College of Mississippi, and will leave here for a short stay at Lakewood Theatre and return south via Cape Cod, where he will absorb some of the dramatic atmosphere at Colony Dennis.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Klander of Philadelphia have joined the medical colony here. The doctor and his wife are ardently interested in golf.

Mrs. Deppich is entertaining her sister, Mrs. Burdett, Mr. Burdett and Miss Marion Burdett.

Earl Deppich and his wife will be with us shortly. Dr. Deppich finds time from business to go in for the collection of antique furniture and china.

W. Simpson ("Bill") Athletic Director at Sokokis, remembered as the author of the North Bridgton song hit, "One Night in Maine, Dear", is a frequent dinner guest at the Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Shraeder of Philadelphia came here to visit their boy, John Andrew, who is at Sokokis. Mr. Shraeder is the legal representative of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Edward "Odie" O'Connell of Boston and North Bridgton will leave here after the summer season to continue his studies at the University of Maine. The best wishes of all the guests go with him. We look forward each year to his welcoming hand and smile.

Miss Muriel Ewing and her mother are here until the closing of Long Lake Lodge. Miss Muriel is a versatile writer and all around sports woman. In 1929 she pitched a winning game in the Femmes vs. Hommes for the benefit of the North Bridgton Library.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold MacGlosson of Beacon came up last week. Mr. MacGlosson is here to sample the health giving air of Maine.

Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Tolar of Florida "stopped by" on a flying trip to the actors' colony at Lakewood.

F. W. Heaney, Esq. and his wife have taken the Wilbur cottage and are joined by Mr. and Mrs. Irving Picard of Beacon. Needless to say their cottage is headquarters for bridge and golf post mortems.

At this writing Mrs. Wilbur has contemplated plans for one of her favorite sunset picnics at a rendezvous which she will not disclose. The guests already sniff in their imagination, the delectable aroma of baked beans, coffee and other palatable commodities for which she alone is noted far and wide.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson and their charming boy (of eight months) have arrived. Needless to say this is Robert, Jr.'s first stay. Mr. Cyril Wilson, who is in the banking business in New York, accompanies the doctor.

Chief Madabeh of the Penobscots gave a talk on the lawn on Sunday night. The setting was very picturesque and as darkness fell the lights from the guests cars lit up the scene. We are always entertained and amused by his talks on sign language, folk lore and woodcraft.

Phillip Wilbur of the Statler of Boston was with his parents at the Inn for a week. The guests have seen "Phi" grow rapidly to manhood and have watched his steady progress with great joy.

Mrs. Harry Moller is the head of an enthusiastic committee planning a huge card party for the benefit of the North Bridgton Library. It will be held on the evening of Saturday, August the 22nd, in the gymnasium of the academy at eight o'clock (eastern standard time). In addition to bridge there will be games of all kinds for those who are not bridge "addicts". The prizes will be numerous and unique. Refreshments will be served. The affair was originally planned by Mrs. Morton Snyder early in the season, and she has been working hard for its consummation ever since. The other members of the committee are Mrs. Harry Hillier, Mrs. Malcolm Crawford, Mrs. Frank Sholair, Mrs. Robert Rosi, Mrs. M. Wilbur, Mrs. Burdett, Mrs. B. Oden, Mrs. MacGlosson, Mrs. Heavey, Mrs. Picard, Mrs. Schraeder, Mrs. Joseph Klander.

George Graham and his mother came Wednesday. Mr. Graham is a graduate of Stephen's Annadale-on-Hudson.

Mrs. Anna Greasy, secretary to the Dean of the Graduate School at Princeton University, accompanied by her son, S. B. Greasy, are here until September.

"SINGLE BRANCH" systems all have their day. They all do some good and gain many adherents, but it cannot be denied that all such "BRANCHES" have their limitations, and for that reason they will eventually have to make room for a system that includes the best of the underlying principles of all of them—and that system is Naturopathy.

Thus progressing into Physiotherapy, Electrotherapy, Spinal Constriction, Zone Therapy, Spinal Adjustments, etc. It is through such means as we here state that the all around practitioner who uses all means at hand, is enabled to treat goitre, paralysis, locomotor ataxia, asthma, hay fever, deafness, fibroid tumors, etc. which yield most readily in the hands of the practitioner who is ready to use all these great means offered him at this day and time.

Consolidated Business Reports

Business conditions in northern New England as a whole show a sustained improvement for July, manifested since the first of the year, although spotty conditions in certain localities tend to cloud the picture as a whole, according to reports from the various centers served by the operating subsidiaries of the New England Public Service Company, made public today. The output of electricity gained 14% for the month, netting an increase of 7 per cent for the year. New customers further accentuated this gain to 24 per cent for the year. Many industries appear to be in the adjustment period to the present situation. Some industries report tonnage capacity but a small margin of profit. Night operation and over-time are apparent in several lines. The time are apparent in several lines. The summer tourist business is not up to last year except in a few localities where this business is reported as better than usual.

Maine: While some of Maine's principal industries fell off slightly over the preceding month, many showed an increase over July of last year. This is especially true of the textiles, granite and shoe trades. Cement and lime showed a slight increase over June.

In the eastern section, generally is very good. Rockland, business generally is making plans to step up production 24 hours daily and all industries are running at least part time. The Ninety per cent of the merchants on the street report business above 1930.

Lewiston, which showed a marked gain last month, dropped off slightly in July. Labor is well employed throughout the central section of Maine.

Portland and the territory to the south, reports trades and collections below normal. Textiles are below normal, but better than last year. Foundry and steel, and tanning show a decrease in production. Shipping shows a greater tonnage than last year, which is encouraging.

New Hampshire: Dover is the particular bright spot in this section, with a number of industries running full capacity days and some overtime. Industrial output in general is about 10 per cent above normal. At Lancaster crops are good although not up to last year's bumper crops. Milford reports business as not quite up to the previous month, principally due to a slackening off in the wool working and granite trades. Fruit, the leading crop in this section, is about 50 per cent of last year, but other crops are reported as fair.

No immediate signs of improvement are seen in the Lancaster division which reports a large surplus of labor. One industry laid off 75 men during the past month. In the section around Keene, crops are reported as fair.
